

dCS Company Announcement

David Marshall Steven, Managing Director

Many of you will have heard the terrible news of the unexpected death of our Managing Director, David Steven. I would like to thank everyone who has sent messages of condolence for their kind and supportive words. We have forwarded your messages to David's family who I know have found them of great comfort at this difficult time.

David was a man of great warmth and humour, and also of great humility. Proud though he was of dCS' achievements, he was always quick to acknowledge that our success was born of team-work and never took the credit for other people's contributions. It is partly as a result of these personal attributes that we now have tremendously strong design, manufacturing, sales and support teams. Though the loss of David is keenly felt by us all, we are ever more committed in our pursuit of digital audio perfection, quality and reliability. As well as continuing to develop our business and to enhance our existing products (already regarded as the best in their field) we have ambitious plans for dCS and exciting new products scheduled for release in 2009, 2010 and beyond.
